Act I

Once upon a time, there was little girl named Clara. It is Christmas Eve and the celebration of Clara's birthday. Clara and her friends are dancing with joy and anxiously awaiting the arrival of Clara's uncle, the magician! This Christmas Eve, Clara's uncle presents her with a nutcracker made in the shape of a soldier. Clara thinks this is the most wonderful present of all. But Clara's joy is soon turned into disappointment when her brother, Fritz and his friends, steal her beloved gift and throw it to the floor, breaking it. Clara's uncle mends the nutcracker, and the party continues.

After the guests leave and the party is over, Clara falls asleep, dreaming of her nutcracker. Suddenly, toy soldiers come to life and mice appear from all corners of the room! A furious battle ensues between the mice and the toy soldiers, who are led by the Nutcracker. During the battle, Clara saves her beloved doll by hitting the Mouse King with her shoe, and the toy soldiers win the battle. At the sign of victory, Clara's uncle takes her through the Land of the Snow where the Nutcracker reveals himself as a Prince and they are greeted by the Queen of the Snowflakes.
